

Security without the friction

A radically different approach to connect, protect and accelerate your business, with Focus Group and Cloudflare.

Harnessing chaos

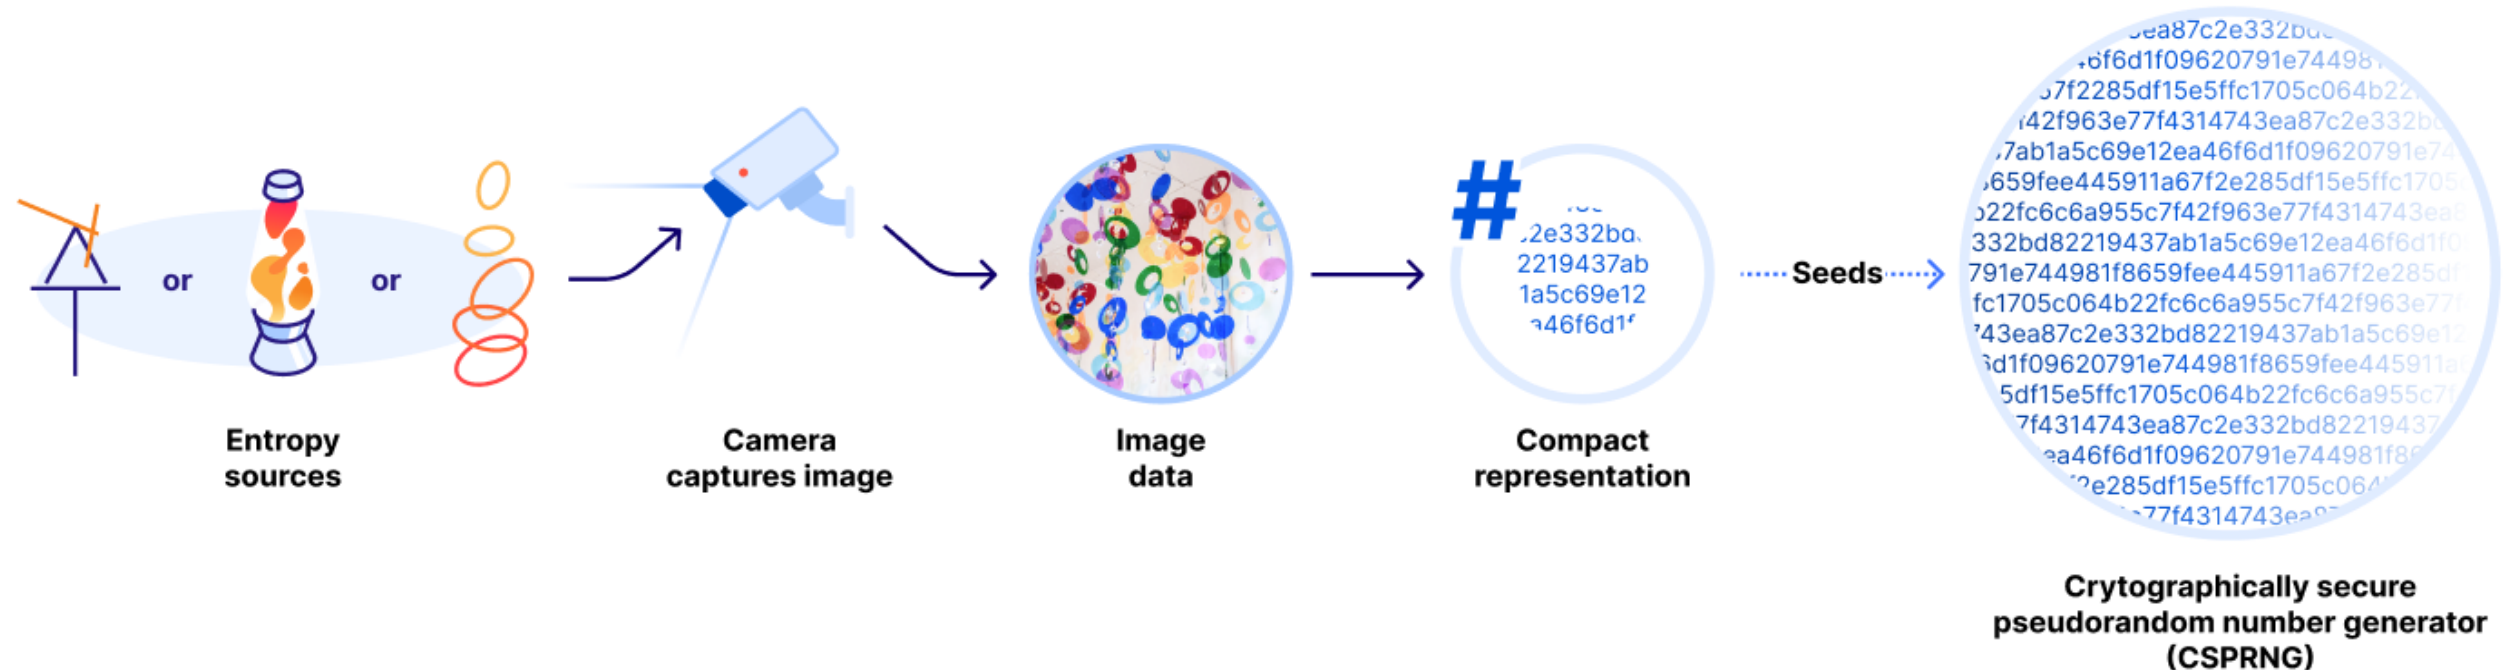

Cloudflare's radically different approach to security takes many

To produce the unpredictable, chaotic data necessary for strong encryption, a computer must have a source of random data.

To collect this data, Cloudflare use Lava lamps, double mounted pendulums, waves (and more) to create unpredictable patterns that never occur twice.

Images of these patterns are then translated into a string of totally random numbers that the Cloudflare servers use as a starting point for creating secure encryption keys.

This enables them to offer extremely strong (and sufficiecntly random) SSL/TLS encryption to millions of customers across the world.

Boundless Connectivity

Leverage the world's largest cloud-native network combined with the UK's leading Virtual Network Operator for connectivity everywhere.

With Focus Group, you get access to the UK's largest ISP and alt net portfolio, ensuring fast and reliable connectivity for every location, device and employee. But when paired with Cloudflare's connectivity cloud that service extends globally and to every application, for secure, performant, any-to-any connectivity.
